ARTHUR N. JULIAN

DEDICATION

A DIGNIFIED, professorial figure dismounts from an old wheel, stands it in a rack, and enters the Chapel. Then, his classroom filled with expectant undergraduate faces, he leans or sits on a table and mixes German verbs with stories of his days in Illinois or in the Deutschland of a generation ago.

Arthur Nelson Julian's immediate forebears were English—his mother a Midwestern teacher, his father a Cornishman who migrated to Canada and then to Plato Center, Illinois, where Arthur was born November 22, 1885. Because most Plato Center citizens were German immigrants, he perforce spoke German. At nearby Elgin, a Scottish community, Arthur found his intellectual father, the Principal of Elgin Academy and a teacher of the classics.

"Should I major in Greek or German?" he asked himself at Northwestern University. Deciding on German, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and was graduated in 1907. After teaching German at Elgin Academy for two years, he travelled and studied in Germany for a year and a half. Returning to America in 1911, he became German instructor at State.

In 1913 Arthur Julian married Helen Gaskill. At his home on the northern edge of campus he has lived a close family life with his four daughters and two sons, spending his spare time on his hobbies—photography and gardening.

Then came World War I. Since the chemistry department lost men and German courses were cut short, Professor Julian was transferred to chemistry. From 1920, however, he has devoted full time to German. On campus he has also worked in both college honorary societies.

As a teacher, Professor Julian is an enthusiast; as a human being, a friend to students; as a part of college life, "a swell prof." Unhurried by the turmoil of modern living, he represents one of the old guard; and his wheel—as he rides it home in the afternoon—symbolizes a cultured gentleman's peaceful way of life in a world gone mad.

Taken from over the Grounds Service Building, this panorama shows Memorial Hall and the Old Chapel with the Holyoke Range in the distance

● Campus Center

Here is the hub of the campus—the chime tower and the war memorial next to it.

The Old Chapel officially houses the Liberal Arts Department—class-rooms, cubby-hole offices, seminar room, and auditorium. The chimes in the Old Chapel tower punctuate the day's activities and will always be associated with Shakespeare, American government, and with the horrors of Public Speaking 29.

Adjoining the Chapel is the more prosaic Memorial Hall—the home of aimless people, busy people, different and diffident people. . . It accommodates vespers, religion, the music department, the Collegian, the 1941 INDEX, the Alumni Office, and even bowling alleys.

RENDEZVOUS of the maroon-topped neophytes, the newest addition to the campus, the center of frosh midnight grind and bull sessions, the school home of the men of '44. . . .

Most frosh living at Lewis hail from metropolitan Boston and Western Massachusetts, while at the other extreme are those who have traveled from six outside states and Hawaii. Hawaii bade Aloha to Bob Engelhard, one of the College's promising football heroes who now lives at the new dorm. Social life at Lewis Hall ranges from ping pong to the vic parties held there frequently.

On October 20, 1940 the new frosh dorm held a reception for the faculty, the staff, and their families to visit the building which was opened September 15 and which was constructed by funds raised by the Alumni Building Corporation. (Large picture of Lewis Hall on opposite page was taken from Thatcher Hall by Senior Donald Simpson especially for the 1941 INDEX.)

Feature attraction of Fernald Hall (affectionately called "Infernal Hall") is the study of Rocks, Frogs, and Insects. From September to June students who major in Geology, Zoology, and Entomology spend mornings, afternoons, and frequently evenings over laboratory benches or over notebooks in the amphitheatre lecture room. On November 11, almost thirty-one years ago, Fernald Hall was dedicated and called one of "the finestlly equipped buildings for entomology in the country." Today, it stands up well after three decades of service to State science students.

● The "Abbey"—Girls' Dormitory

This year marks the revolution of the Abigail Adams House; for at the beginning of the second semester it became an upperclass coed dormitory.

The government of the Abbey is unusual—a more or less happy medium between totalitarianism and democracy. At the head stands Mrs. Broughton, the house-mother, who is assisted by a house chairman (a senior elected by the W.S.G.A.) and four proctors (juniors chosen by Miss Skinner and the W.S.G.A. Council). Despite changes, the Abbey will have the same play, work, and even the same problems.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Massachusetts State College is a unit designed to provide a source of reserve officers in the United States Cavalry. Two years of training are required of every physically fit male who enters State. Remaining two years of optional instruction give a limited number of students an opportunity to earn commissions as Second Lieutenants.

Basic course of instruction consists of dismounted drill, manual of arms, chemical warfare, marksmanship, military hygiene and sanitation, military history and customs of the service. The regimental review presented yearly during Commencement (see picture below) climaxes this rudimentary training.

Sophomores learn the art of equitation and many participate in horse shows during the course of the year. The three upperclasses also participate in week-end road marches in the surrounding countryside. These trips are made under actual field conditions and provide necessary experience for the future officers.

Perhaps the period most anxiously prepared for is the Federal Inspection—when officers designated by the War Department make their annual inspection of the various units throughout the country and judge the accomplishments of these organizations. The Massachusetts State College corps has received an “excellent” rating, a classification which is proudly upheld by members of the cadet corps and of the Regular Army personnel.

The R.O.T.C. also possesses its social angle. The Military Ball, first big social event of the year, was held December 6, 1940. Harry Scollin, 1941 chairman of the ball, presented State's most popular military formal for years—together with his committee made up of Wes Aykroyd, Jack Haskell, Ernie Bolt, George Bragdon, Bob Hall, and Win Avery. One of the INDEX's on-the-spot writers, “Duke” Politella, gives his account of the colorful dance:

“Horses' heads were profiled against a golden halo. Crossed cavalry sabres gleamed from all sides. Spread eagles perched majestically on their sturdy claws.

"There was a distinctly blue sky above and a very slippery floor below, while all about gleamed the white of shirt fronts and the brass of embryo officers. The Military Ball pulled the lanyard on the formal dance series at State...and they say that the shell which was released has not been accounted for definitely as yet....

"Hal McIntyre's band did the honors at the inception of a new Honorary Colonel—Jeanne Phillips, reputed to be the most beautiful bit of femininity on campus...we were convinced by the sight of the fair damsel drifting happily under the arch of swords created by the cadets of her command....Ball Committee Chairman Harry Scollin was the donor of a steady right arm for the escort detail. Lieutenant Colonel Donald A. Young, P.M.S.&T., presented Miss Phillips with a colorful bouquet of red roses and a gold insignia of crossed sabres... getting back to horses, sabres and stuff, we hope the motif next year will not go ultra-modern on us and display combat cars stuck in the mud and the sabres re-

In June the awarding of commissions to members of the graduating class is the proudest moment of the Army's spirit here. Of the twenty seniors who became "shave-tails" with the class of '40, for example, thirteen were selected for a year's active duty under the Thomason Act; and this year the prospects are greater. "Massachusetts State College is able to produce some of the best officer material in the Army."

Two hundred twenty miles on horseback to Fort Ethan Allen! After seniors receive commissions, juniors begin their annual ride to the fort. More than twenty junior military majors ride through Vermont's Green Mountains to the fort where they spend three weeks in rifle, machine-gun, and pistol practice. There the boys get a taste of honest-to-goodness Army life, living in tents and "learning the ropes." Kitchen Police duty, a camp horseshow, and a daily routine of horse-grooming and range practice occupy the men from five-thirty in the morning until five in the afternoon. And finally comes the ten-day ride back to State where they arrive tanned and dusty and tired.

The Cavalry, instead of being on its way out, is definitely on its way to being more important than ever before—this is the keynote of a statement made this year by Lt. Col. Donald A. Young, commandant of the Massachusetts State College R.O.T.C. unit.

"Gone are the days," Colonel Young said, "when the Cavalry unit consisted of a cavalryman, a horse, a McLellan pack, a sabre, a rifle and a pistol. The modern Cavalry unit, augmented by small tanks, light guns and other pieces of mechanized warfare, is more effective, more dangerous than ever before. In recent wars, horses have been moved in vans hundreds of miles to woodlands, mountains, swamps, deserts—places where tanks would be of no avail."

The fact that Germany has a cavalry of between 700,000 and 800,000 horses; that England is building up her own cavalry; that Italy, without the aid of cavalry in her African campaign, is having a great deal of trouble moving her tanks about in the desert—all this, Colonel Young emphasized, pointed to the importance of cavalry, augmented by mechanized units.

Interest in war is taking more and more of a hold on the College: the number of students in competition for the R.O. T.C. rifle team (began in November, 1940 on campus) far exceeds the number of candidates for any other student activity, sports, or academic. Despite insufficient facilities for training and despite the fact that no remuneration is to be given, 135 men representing all classes turned out for the rifle team which is coached by Lieut. Anthony Nogello '37. Participation is voluntary. No letters or other recognition are awarded. Several postal meets have already been arranged with Louisiana State University, Virginia Polytechnical Institute, Rutgers University, University of Tennessee, University of Pennsylvania, Connecticut State University, and Niagara University. A fifteen man team has been chosen and is representing the college at all rifle meets.

During the June regimental review military awards are made: the Society of the American Revolution medals, the 315th Cavalry trophy sabre, marksmanship medals, and the Stowell trophy cup.

"Flying Statesmen is the name we're known by," say the twenty State College students who are given training under the Civil Aeronautics Act. The ground school on campus is supervised by Dr. Andersen, with instructors Lanphear, Ross, and Marston assisting; it includes 48 hours of instruction in aviation theory, radio, and related courses.

Any candidate for a degree, who is nineteen years of age, who ranks well in his studies, and who passes a rigid physical examination, is eligible. After completing the courses in January, candidates are quizzed by a federal examiner. If successful, the student takes thirty-five hours of flying instruction at the Westfield Airport.

Alumni Construction of Dormitories

The State campus skyline has undergone a memorable change this year. As a result, 147 coeds and 157 men are able to enjoy the benefits of dormitories instead of rooming-houses off campus.

"To me, these dormitories are the symbol of a growing spirit of cooperation between private groups and the government." With these words, Governor Leverett Saltonstall paid tribute to the work of the Alumni Association.

The two new dormitories—Lewis Hall and the women's building on Clark Estate Hill—are essentially of same construction, brick throughout and completely fireproof. The luxury of a private dining room in the coeds' "dorm" permits an uninterrupted daily schedule. Overlooking the Valley panorama, both dormitories will form an important part of the freshman's life on campus. In this work the alumni have responded nobly to the needs of their Alma Mater.

"Moving day!" occurred in February when coeds occupied the Butterfield House.

"Religion Stabilizes Life on Campus"

Religious Director Sharp advises Handbook

"It is difficult for the State College student to think of religious activities on campus without a profound feeling of gratitude—a feeling which daily grows deeper as the gap widens between the broken spirit of the world and the harmony of faith on his own campus."

A sound reason for the existence of this spirit is the United Religious Council and interfaith functions on campus.

The 1941 Annual Religious Conference was the best witness to the unified spirit which motivates the activities of the United Religious Council. "Religion in a World of Crisis" was the theme of the eighth annual parley held at this college on February 12 and 13. In the opening session over which President Baker presided, Dr. Seth Rogers Brooks spoke on "Responsibility of the Church and Synagogue Today." At the evening panel discussion, the theme dealt with religion in a world of war; the panel members were distinguished: Dr. Philip L. Gamble; Miss Dorothy Day, Editor of Catholic Worker, New York; Rabbi Barnett Brickner, Euclid Avenue Temple, Cleveland; and John M. Swomley, Fellowship of Reconciliation, New York.

In the closing session on February 13, Dean Machmer presided. Topic of the day was "The Individual and His Life." Speaker was Dr. A. W. Loos of Spelman College in Georgia.

The Rev. David A. Sharp, the College's Director of Religious Education, was general supervisor of the conference itself.

Another of the regular religious activities is the Vesper services which are held every Sunday afternoon in the Memorial Building. Protestant, Jewish, and Catholic speakers are secured from all parts of the country to speak at these services.

Williams, Washburn, Wyman, Burnham, R. Walker, Gould, Hathaway, Schubert, R. Smith, Irvine Cole, Andrew, Miss Stohlmann, Miss Spencer, Miss Avery, Miss Lawrence, Miss Moseley, Miss Van Meter, Miss Goldman, Leonard

Misses D. Miller, Duffy, King, H. Smith, Arnold, Van Buren, Merrill, Flagg, Gagnon, S. Burgess
Misses M. Davis, Politella, Moulton, M. Grise, Desmond, D. Johnson, De Palma, Judge, Avella, Fiske

Effectiveness of Vespers is chiefly due to the music of the choir which is conducted under the inspiring direction of music instructor Alviani, State's "musical bombshell." Famous off campus as well as on campus, the 55-member choir has popularized Vespers, presented several special concerts, and made a number of appearances alone and several more in conjunction with the other musical clubs.

Vesper speakers included Dr. Rufus M. Jones, philosophy professor and author; Dr. James Gordon Gilkey; Dr. Edwin B. Robinson; Dr. Henry D. Gray; and Bishop William Appleton Lawrence. And each year at the last Vesper services, faculty and students gather to hear a Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant student speak on each religion.

The United Religious Council is composed of an Advisory Council made up of faculty members appointed by President Baker, an Advisory Board composed of clergy and laymen interested in the college, and finally the Student Religious Council composed of representatives from the three major faiths.

Most active religious force on campus is the Rev. Mr. Sharp who is also advisor of the Freshman Handbook. His goal has always been to bring religion into the student's life.

Fine Arts • Concerts • Social Union

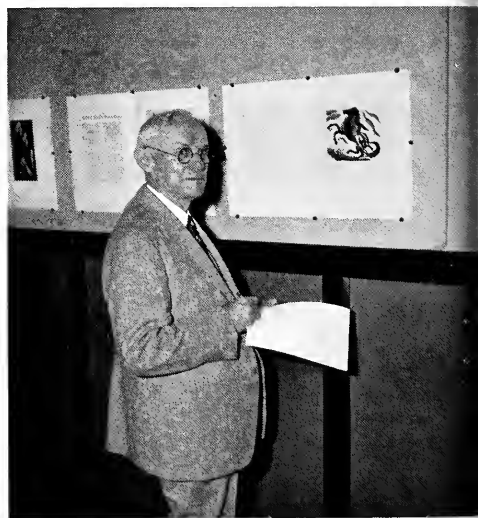

Doric and the Sinfonietta practice for musical revue

Music . . . literature . . . artists and performers in several mediums . . . painting—culture has a place on campus. Three focal points are the Fine Arts Council, Community Concert, and Social Union.

The fifth annual series of programs presented by the Fine Arts Council began October 29, 1940, when Miss Kidder and Dr. Waugh presented their traditional opening concert. The next event on the Tuesday afternoon programs was Miss Carolyn Ball, pianist, on November 4. Next Tuesday Prof. S. S. Smith of the A.S.C.A.P. lectured on "The Fine Arts in a Democracy." On November 26 Prof. M. Markuson discussed stone houses. On December 17, Doric Alviani, baritone, sang a program of favorite songs, accompanied by Mrs. V. Shumway. Other programs included a number of local and off-campus speakers and artists.

Professor F. A. Waugh, head of the Fine Arts Council

As part of the Fine Arts program were presented displays of etchings, paintings, woodcuts, lithographs, prints, and reproductions in the Memorial Building.

The Amherst Community Concert Association claims most subscribers among State College students. The first concert of the tenth annual series was presented in the fall with the Metropolitan Opera Company baritone, Leonard Warren. The Kraeuter Trio appeared January 10. And February 17 found the pianist, Randolph Hokanson, on campus. The dancing of Carola Goya on April 27 concluded this year's schedule of musical artists.

Dr. Frank A. Waugh is chairman of the Fine Arts Committee. Active on the Community Concert committee were Doric Alviani and Prof. Stowell Goding.

Social Union, paid for by the student body through their student tax, presented a year's program characterized by variety. Kurt and Grace Graff with their Ballet troupe drew a full house on October 9. For more serious lovers of music, the Boston Philharmonic Ensemble appeared on December 5. Cornelia Otis

Skinner, noted stage personality and one of America's leading actresses, returned to campus this year on January 16; presenting comedy, satire and pathos in rapid succession, she proved herself to be still the greatest single attraction of the stage.

Mystifying students with tricks and capturing them with his inimitable personality, John Mulholland made his visit on February 18 a memorable one.

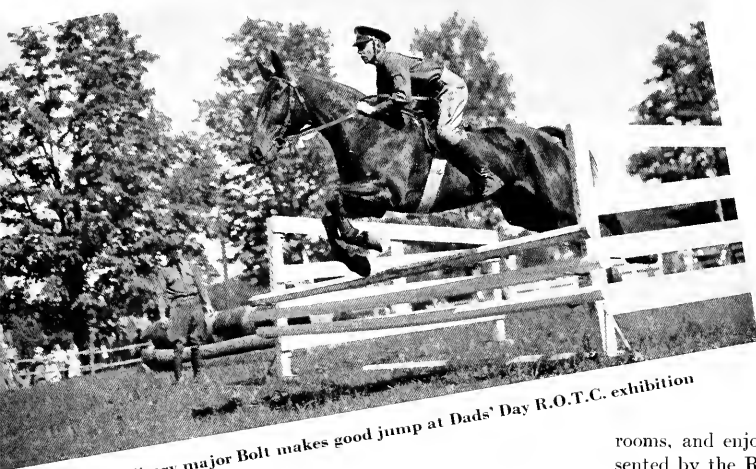

In the spring a student-written musical comedy was to be produced on campus as a Social Union program. Written and begun by co-authors Bob McCartney, Bob Breglio, and Pete Barreca, the show was indefinitely cancelled because time was lacking on the part of the participants and the overworked authors. The INDEX sympathizes with the ambitious creators.

Final programs were the Musical Revue by the well-known State musical clubs on March 12 and the concert by Rudolph Ganz, pianist, on March 24.

Dads' Day

Senior military major Bolt makes good jump at Dads' Day R.O.T.C. exhibition

Five hundred fathers converged on campus October 26 to take part in the annual celebration in their honor. Jean Davis, chairman of the committee, accomplished a feat in making the proud dads at home. They inspected the campus, visited class rooms, and enjoyed the horse show presented by the R.O.T.C. juniors and seniors. Guests at the football game, the dads watched the fighting statesmen trounce Worcester for a 12-6 victory, the first of the season. In the evening at Bowker, the dads topped off a perfect day at a show consisting of interfraternity skits.

Senate's Second "Campus Varieties"

"She is more to be pitied than censored, she is more to be helped than despised."

A mellerdramer complete with moustached villain and winsome, but ill-advised lassie—"Tainted Blood"—was this year's Campus Varieties show. And while Schlyvester Schlemeil (Bobby Triggs) and Beauteous Belinda (Peggy Stanton) made their asides to the audience, the 1941 Sub-Freshman Day was made possible: for the funds of the Varieties are turned over to the Senate for that purpose. The idea of Sub-Freshman Day for promising high school scholars and athletes originated first in 1939 through the efforts of students and faculty.

This year's "Tainted Blood" had a winning informality and variety that made it a success. Laurels go to Bob Breglio's musical effects, the Alpha Gamma Rho Glee Club, "Harry Trueblue" Hoxie, Mary Judge, Bartender Jack Haskell, Master of Ceremonies Aec Taylor, and to the rest of the supporting cast.

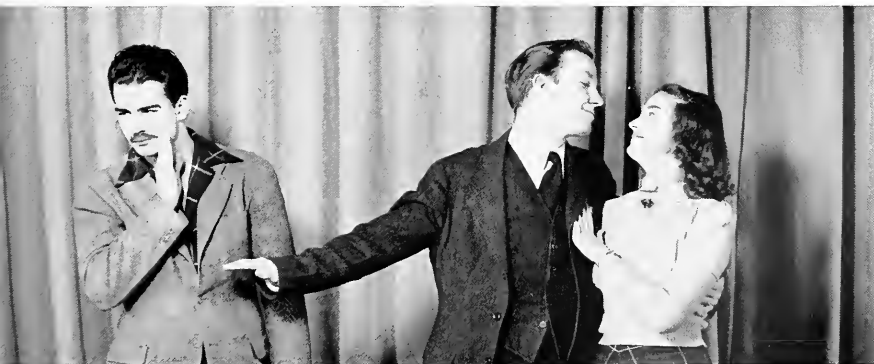

The play, written by Francis Ward and George Langton, supposedly was a true revival of the Gay Nineties with occasional State College touches. Students and band packed Bowker to capacity after the football rally; and after an evening of belly-laughs, sang the chorus to Stu Hubbard's "She's more to be pitied..." and also the 1940 State song called the "Massachusetts Challenge Song," a Barreca-Breglio hit.

"The more the merrier" is meaningful when applied to the incoming freshmen on State campus. The class of 1944 is the largest in the history of Massachusetts State College.

Among the new students were those who came for the "fun-and-frolic" repute bestowed on the school by the New York

Welcome, Frosh!

Times...others came to fit themselves for a dubious career...the remainder tagged along because it is the thing to do once a high school diploma is safely tucked away.

The first two weeks provided a varied program for the neophytes. Registration...physical exams...psychological tests. The faculty took a big hand in welcoming the new class with orientation lectures and talks on the college customs.

When Doric Alviani led the freshmen in the student sing, the maroon-and-white-topped new-comers felt that they finally belonged to State College and that the songs were their own. The socially inclined freshmen were inducted into the lighter side of campus life at the Freshman Reception given on the night of September 20. They ran the gauntlet of the receiving line, danced, partook of refreshments, and sang together, again under Doric's leadership.

The traditional, and final, event of the first week was the freshman-sophomore battle--the annual rope pull across the "Abbey" serenade at the chilly hour of 6:30 a.m.

Somewhat later coeds go on a "fishing trip" college pond. With determined frosh on one side and hopeful sophs on the other—a grim fight began. But the frosh dampened the spirit of the sophomores; for, in eight minutes, the frosh had won.

Meanwhile, the freshman program was still crowded. At the chilly hour of 6:30 in the morning, the freshmen serenaded the Abigail Adams House "under the auspices of the Maroon Key." Then, too, fraternity rushing began September 26. Tours of the houses, "vic parties," and smokers further confused the "rushes."

The following Saturday came the second round in the Frosh-Soph struggle for supremacy...Razoo Day. After a program of wrestling and boxing among the manlier of the two classes, the Senate abandoned the skirmish on the athletic field for individual battles on a platform in the middle of the college pond. The sophomores recovered some of their lost pride by besting the freshmen, even though it was by the margin of one point.

During the week coeds wore coats backward, displayed unmatched shoes, carried glasses of flowers to class, played with dolls, and recited nonsensical prose—this was coed hazing.

One bright Saturday afternoon in October freshman coeds, in the fiendish hands of the upperclasswomen, went through the excitement of the Freshman Coed "Fishing Party" on the shores of College Pond.

The 31st Annual Horticultural Show

Japanese Tea Garden, an outstanding work exhibited by Land. Arch. graduate students

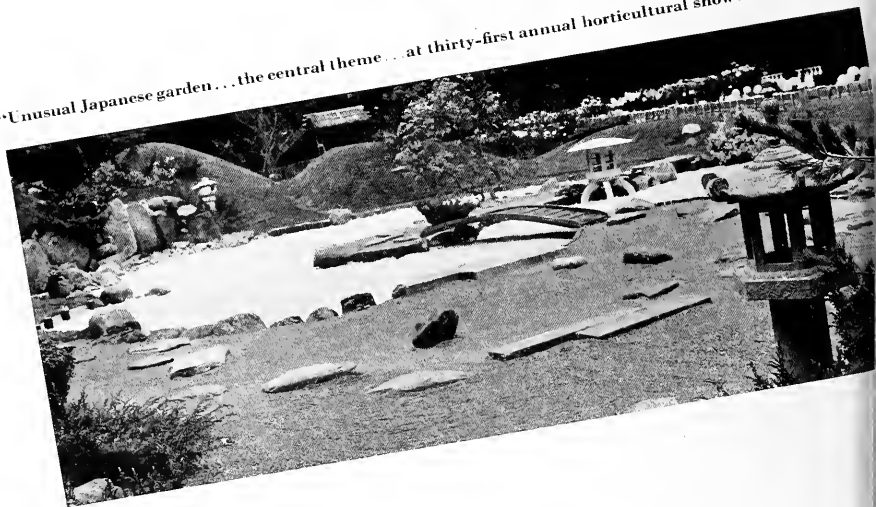

An unusual oriental motif plus days and weeks of research, planning, and labor insured success to the 1940 Horticultural Show. About 15,595 persons were attracted during the three days of the thirty-first annual flower show held on the week-end of November 3. As in each of the past twenty-two years, Professor Clark L. Thayer guided the entire enterprise. The larger share of the actual work, however, was done by State and Stockbridge students. Winners in the undergraduate displays were Betty Desmond, George Feiker, Henry Thompson, Richard Smith, Marion Freedman, and Vivian Henschel.

The Japanese garden was the show's central theme. Pagodas, lattice-work fence, rock cascade with moss-covered stones and real waterfall, and small trees brought out the Oriental motif. Other features were a Japanese tea garden, an oriental winter garden, and several miniature Japanese scenes.

From 1908 until 1932, the annual show took place in Wilder Hall, French Hall, and outdoor tents. When the physical education cage was built, an ideal place was created for this show which combines outside and student ability in flower and fruit arrangement and landscape planning.

"Unusual Japanese garden... the central theme... at thirty-first annual horticultural show in November"

Gilbert and Sullivan

Presented at Stockbridge Hall April 11, 1940, "The Gondoliers"—supplemented by the college orchestra, electric organ, elaborate sets, and special lighting—received a salvo of applause from a large audience. Principals were Margaret Stanton (Tessa), Myron Hager (Guiseppe), Betty Moulton (Gianetta), and John Osmun. Other main roles were: Rita Mosely (Casilda), Bob Dunn (Luiz), Isadore Cohen (Lord Inquisitor), Bob Carpenter (Duke of Plaza-Toros).

The 1941 Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "H.M.S. Pinafore," was a timely one since the theme involves the life and ego of the British sailor. Principals of the cast included the following: William Clark (Sir Joseph Porter), Kenneth Col-lard (Captain Cocoran), John Gould (Ralph Rackstraw), Tracy Slack (Bill Bobstay), Wendell Washburn (Bob Becket), Betty Moulton (Josephine), Rita Mosely (Hebe), and Gladys Archibald (Mrs. Cripps). Chorus was composed of men's and women's glee clubs and the Sinfonietta also appeared. Robert McCartney was business manager...and Scientific selection of beauty! Used to determine the week-end comeliness, the applause meter (by Minzner '37) "oscillated in grand style," choosing for this year's carnival the dark Norma Handforth, a Sigma Beta Chi belle.

The biggest event of the week-end, even for the cup-winning Alpha Gamma Rho brethren, was the Carnival Ball. The "barn" shone forth in all its glory. Despite the un-wint'ry weather, the Drill Hall was iced with the Spirit of Winter...even Johnny McGee's hot tunes failed to melt the silvery atmosphere. Gowns and orchids and tiaras; tails, tuxes, black, white, and maroon ties...everything to announce the festivity of the occasion transformed the formerly prosaic students. Figure skaters and skiers adorned the walls, and Kurlowicz's "M" Girl almost tapped ski-booted toes to the tunes interpreted by McGee and band. High spot of the evening was the selection of Norma Handforth as Carnival Queen.

"High on a Windy Hill"—Alpha Gamma Rho's prize-winning snow sculpture showed most talent and originality. Racing against time and thawing weather, fraternities put in days of work. Judges Thayer, Fraker, and Helming admitted that the '41 sculptures excelled past years'. Sigma Alpha Epsilon's Valentine's Day theme took second; Lambda Chi Alpha took a well-earned third with its University of Massachusetts skier.

The '41 graduate's departing glimpse of his Alma Mater

With finals over, the Saturday introducing Commencement is the day for alumni and fraternity reunions, for the final baseball game, and for the Roister Doisters' production of William Saroyan's "Washington Slept Here."

On Sunday, after club breakfasts, seniors and faculty parade to the Rhododendron Garden for the Baccalaureate Service. Afterward President Baker receives the seniors at his home. In the evening come Senior Class Day exercises with student speakers: Ivy Orator, Pipe Orator, Hatchet Orator, Class Day Orator, and Class Ode composer. A torchlight parade ends the evening.

Final graduation exercises occur on Monday. And the Soph-Senior Hop on Monday night is the last social get-together of the seniors who reminisce at the sound of the Chapel chime. . .

ADMINISTRATION—these men and women guide more than 1,211 students through four years of college. Policy-forming, finances, and discipline are the functions of President Baker, Dean Machmer, Registrar Lanphear, the Treasurer's Department, and the Extension Service. The Placement Service provides student employment; the News Service, college publicity; and Alumni Secretary Emery, contact between alumni and their Alma Mater.

The one-hundred twenty-odd members of the teaching faculty, for the most part, go beyond their duties as instructors and give students much-needed inspiration. Massachusetts State College is gaining a reputation, not only for its courses in agriculture and the sciences, but also for its cultural courses leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree.

M. S. C. Associate Alumni

An alumni committee on athletics functions with the athletic department at the College, working toward the end that Massachusetts State teams may be as good as those of other colleges in our class.

Portraits of former teachers and presidents of the College have been placed in campus buildings by the Alumni.

The Alumni work with the committee of the Student Senate to acquaint well-qualified students with educational opportunities at the College. Alumni report on good prospective students; the undergraduate committee then invites these students for a campus weekend.

The Associate Alumni interests itself in the maintenance of good college publicity, and in the continuance of a capable College Trustee Board.

The work of the Associate Alumni best known to students on campus is that which provided $7,400 in scholarships, and the two new dormitories.

Through the fine cooperation of the Lotta Crabtree Fund Trustees, an Alumni Committee announced last fall that members of each class would receive $1,600 in scholarship awards this year, that two Alumni in the graduate school would each receive $500.

However, the building of two dormitories has been the most celebrated accomplishment of the Associate Alumni this year. With the cooperation of the parents of students and the college administrative board, the Alumni secured legislative approval for the erection of self-liquidating dormitories. Nearly a half million dollars was then secured for the construction of the buildings. These dormitories will be presented to the College as soon as returns from rentals have retired the bond issues which were arranged to cover the cost of construction.

The Associate Alumni was organized in 1874, with its purpose the promotion of the welfare of Massachusetts State College. Through active cooperation, the Association has greatly aided the progress of the College since that time.

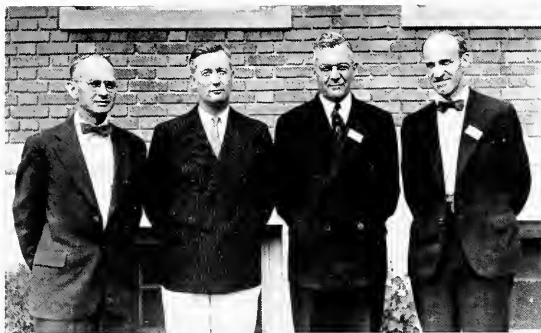

Within the past twenty years the Alumni made possible the building of Memorial Hall, the athletic field, the Physical Education Building—through their initiative as well as through actual financial contribution.

The work of the Alumni Organization was in large part responsible for the award of the A.B. degree and for the change of name of the College.

During the past two years the Association has carried on a statewide program designed to give high school officials a better understanding of the College entrance requirements and courses. The head of this Alumni Committee is himself a superintendent of city schools.

Lewis Hall, named in tribute to a former president of the College, is now housing one hundred and fifty men of the freshman (1944) class. Lewis Hall was completed last June and stands as a handsome monument to alumni initiative. The second dormitory, located on the Clark Estate hill, was ready for occupancy by the undergraduate women in February. The building has been named the Kenyon Butterfield House.

In addition to these outstanding accomplishments, the Alumni Office in Memorial Hall carries on a continuous program of work in behalf of individual alumni and alumni clubs. This central office maintains address, occupational, and biographic lists of all graduates and former students; and gladly supplies much useful information to many individual alumni as well as to organized alumni clubs. It also helps local alumni clubs in arranging meetings, parties, and other affairs; and helps class secretaries conduct reunions.

The Alumni Bulletin, sent out ten times a year to Associate Alumni members, contains news of interest about the College and the work of the graduates.

Massachusetts State College is a growing college, and the loyal interest of the alumni has played a large part in this growth and progress. Every State alumnus should, by active membership, help support his alumni organization and, through so doing, help to increase the prestige of his College. The accomplishments of the Associate Alumni depend not only on its able and energetic officers but also on the active support of each individual alumnus.

During January a bill to re-name the College the University of Massachusetts was introduced before the current session of the legislature by the Associate Alumni. After hearing the report of an Alumni Committee in 1937, the Alumni Directors gave further thought to the university matter and in December, 1940 recommended it to the College Trustees.

Professor Charles Hiram Thayer, "The Old Naturalist"

● In Recognition

Professor Walter W. Chenoweth . . . "organized the Horticultural Manufactures Dept."

Professor Chenoweth this year completes his twenty-ninth year as one of the most popular members of the State College faculty. It would be impossible to compress in these words a fitting tribute to the three decades of service which he has rendered the college. His retirement will leave us with a memory not to be effaced by time.

To honor Professor Chenoweth is to add but a postscript to a career marked by a creditable record. Nearly two generations of students have revered him. He has gained fame for the college and himself during his long career at State College. This year the INDEX is proud to make this tribute to Professor Chenoweth in recognition . . . of a pioneer in his field, teacher supreme in his classroom, and gentleman throughout his life . . .

In 1903 Professor Chenoweth graduated from Valparaiso College with a B.A. degree and later received his B.S. Agr. degree at Missouri University in 1912. He headed the science department at Missouri Normal School for seven years and then acted as secretary of the State Horticultural Board of Missouri.

In 1912 he became instructor of pomology at State College and later was promoted to the post of associate professor.

"Food will win the war!" was a favorite slogan of World War I. Like a true patriot, Walter Chenoweth during those trying years organized food administration in Massachusetts and led the College's effort in food conservation and preservation. In 1918 he organized the Horticultural Manufactures Department at State and since then has been one of the world's pioneers in the field of horticultural manufactures. Under his enthusiastic leadership this department has expanded rapidly in facilities and personnel until in 1929 a building was erected to meet rapidly growing needs.

Professor Chenoweth has been responsible for much research in food preservation carried on at State and for many developments in that industry. He is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Xi, and Alpha Zeta.

FIGHTING to the finish, two hundred seventy seniors will graduate this June. In 1937 the class of 1941 numbered 360. Only 78% saw college through. Mentally confused, the class of '41 at that time regarded college as a paradise—until it found that study was a necessity. Then followed four packed years during which an A.B. degree was introduced at State and during which World War II began outside the college's "cloistered walls." At the end of their college careers, seniors exclaim, "Time certainly flies, doesn't it? Egad, it seems a little while ago that I was writing themes on why I came to college!" But the senior has undergone four years of so-called higher education crammed in with study, activities, sports, and dances. And now... comes the struggle for existence in a war-torn world....

UTURE leaders of the coming generation find a training-ground at Massachusetts State College in the varied student government activities. From the active Senate to smaller groups, like the Dads' Day committee, a spirit of leadership that is ALIVE predominates. These honorary societies, class officers, student self-government groups, and less elaborate committees show the same cooperation found on the football gridiron. Handling of student funds and finances in these activities develops the character of those who have been elected by fellow students. Mature advice and experience in many of the groups reach the students through faculty advisors. From September until June, these student organizations plan the year's program for most student dances and minor activities. These are the men ahead of the average.

SENATE

The Senate, junior-senior organization which is the main executive body on campus, this year proved its brain-children—the Campus Varieties and Student Leader Day—to be worthy additions to the State campus.

The Senate purchased a baseball scoreboard and gave $250 toward the electric organ. In addition, the body sponsored Sub-Freshman Day and improved class election rules. It integrates all underclass organizations, including the Handbook.

The W.S.G.A.—scourge of freshman coeds without berets and frugal issuer of one o'clock permissions—continued their tradition of meetings on rainy nights and customary discipline. Most important of all the W.S.G.A. initiated the Isogon.

This more progressive W.S.G.A. does not expect merely to chastise frisky coeds but wishes to be the vehicle of better coed self-government and to advance women's place on the campus. The active head of the organization is Evelyn Bergstrom.

The INDEX—the Collegian—the Band—the Roister Doisters—all are supervised by the Academic Activities Board. It is seldom considered an ogre but rather an essential student-faculty organization, and is made up of two faculty members, two alumni members, student activities managers, Dean Machmer, and a board manager.

Part of the Board's work is the annual awarding of activities medals, a Conspicuous Service Cup and a Manager's Prize.

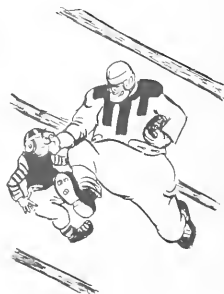

White "M's" against a maroon background are both attractive and significant of honor. The Intercollegiate Athletic Committee decides on the athlete's qualifications for these.

The committee—Chairman Curry Hicks, Director of Athletics, alumni F. A. McLaughlin and Theoren Warner, M. O. Lanphear, Secretary Earle Carpenter, and all student sports managers—considers candidates for varsity letters, decides on the selection of managers, and buys equipment.

ADELPHIA

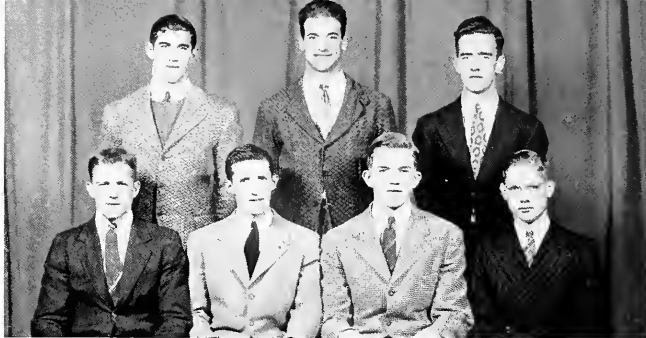

Maroon coats mark the men who have made campus life richer without winning the usual campus fame. In May seniors and juniors are "tapped" every year by retiring members of the society. With its aim the "promotion of good fellowship and the fostering of the highest ideals on campus," the Adelphia in the past year directed football rallies, conducted its annual Red Cross campaign, collected funds for the March of Dimes, and directed activities for which no other organization exists.

This year, coeds will also be "tapped" to membership in a senior honorary society—the new Isogon. The first seven seniors were appointed by the W.S.G.A. Council and, hereafter, the Isogon will be self-perpetuating. Four seniors are chosen in the spring and seven juniors at the Junior-Senior Processional. Appointment, based on character, scholarship, versatility, and participation in activities, is by unanimous vote. Isogon provides a worthwhile goal for all women students.

MAROON KEY

The freshman's opinion of the Maroon Key naturally depends on the time of year. At early morning "serenades" the freshman may be a bit biased, but the true worth of the Key is not long hidden. Besides supplying hats for college atmosphere, it acts as host to visiting varsity teams.

From 32 freshmen, later cut to 18 by the Senate, 10 are chosen for the Maroon Key. It has come to be respected both by visitors and classmates.

Each class elects two members to serve four years on the Interclass Athletic Board. This schedules interclass games, determines eligibility, and awards numerals.

The board plans to hold interclass competition in football and soccer in the fall; swimming, track, basketball, and hockey in the winter; and baseball, track and tennis in the Spring. These sports present a successful form of athletic activity supplementary to the regular varsity program.

INTERCLASS ATHLETICS

Crimmins, Walsh
R. Jones, C. Burr, Miss Phillips, Miss Critchett

With Commencement and the Soph-Senior Ball as the closing events in its scholastic and social life, the Class of 1941 leaves campus but carries on the tradition of Massachusetts State. The freshmen who arrived in 1937 have matured and this year have held important positions—sports or extracurricular activities managers, lettermen, Senate or Adelpia members, publications editors, Isogon members, fraternity or sorority officers, advanced cadet officers, and their quota of Phi Kappa Phi scholars.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

The Class of 1942 first saw Amherst through a mist, and they were not through the rigors of ghosts-on-campus talk when the Hurricane arrived. Since then, a few have returned to the Great Unheard-of beyond Amherst; but most have gone on walking over the same numerals, cutting the same classes. . . . At this point they are beginning to study what they like; but the privileges, the lordship, and the rousing nostalgia of the Senior are still only theirs in anticipation.

Werme, Freitas
Eldridge, Miss Hall, W. Dwyer, Miss Avery

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

McDonough, W. E. Clark
Hicks, Fitzpatrick, Miss Carpenter, Miss Gutfinski

SOPHOMORE OFFICERS

The Class of 1943, like the junior class, cuts the carpet (in the social respect) regularly and thoroughly. However, after holding a sophomore social and a sophomore Christmas party, the class then proved its high mental ability by capturing several Lotta Crabtree scholarships. For the class in general, high spot of the year is the Soph-Senior Ball. The three-hundred members of the class this year chose an exceptional Maroon Key membership, lost the annual rope-pull to freshmen, and won on Razoo Day.

When coeds begin to knock out their teeth with hockey sticks and to limp about in jodhpurs, everyone realizes that the Women's Athletic Association is at work. For its function is to manage all sports for coeds not already leaden-eyed from the efforts of social life and study. In W.A.A. organization, there are student officers, Physical Director, and a captain for each sport. Coed participation is voluntary. The W.A.A. makes rules, carries on tournaments, and makes awards in May.

"What about honor?" Pressing question of the year, it came to another solution after the old Honor Council resigned. In November, 1940, Dr. Goldberg and Dr. Woodside were appointed to serve with Dean Machmer as faculty members of the Honor Commission. McCutcheon '42 and Blodgett '41 were appointed by the Senate; Miss Bergstrom '41 and Miss Berry '42 by the W.S.G.A. Cases of dishonesty are reported to the Commission by all instructors who conduct exams to their own preference.

HANDBOOK BOARD

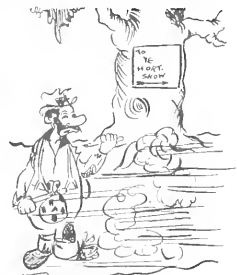

"A group of dusty compilers of State rules and activities and traditions"—this is the Freshman Handbook Board. Under the economical but expectant eye of the Senate, the organization of the board has been entirely changed in the past year. It is now to ensnare three juniors, three sophomores, and three freshman competitors. In the work of these nine, however, there is always the bait of innovation and the sense of the Handbook's being a "Bible" of guidance to perennially new frosh.

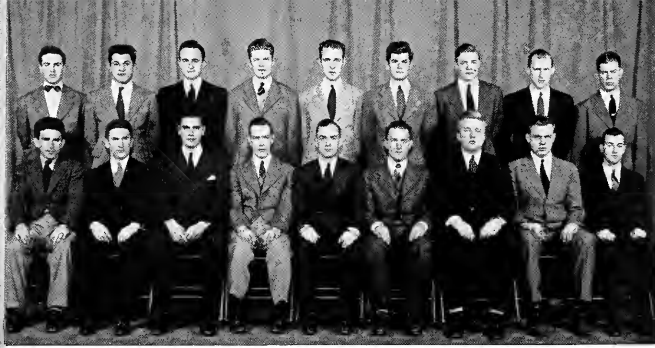

Due recognition for the success of the 31st Horticultural Show goes to Student Managers Kenneth Waltermire and Merton Ouderkirk for the direction and portrayal of a difficult Oriental theme. The central theme, taken from a religious woodcut found in an old Japanese book, was the first educational theme that the Department of Landscape Architecture has had in the annual show. Laurels also go to the other committee members and to the Stockbridge School of Agriculture for their hard work.

"Healthy competition" among fraternities through the Greek sing, declamation, skits, snow sculpture, house inspection, and athletics competitions—this is the aim of the Interfraternity Council. It also supervises the complicated task of freshman rushing in the fall, for which rules were revised this year. Since sixty per cent of men students belong to fraternities, the council functions as a meaningful organization at Massachusetts State.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

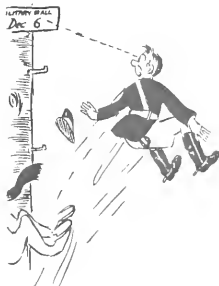

The Intersorority Council, composed of two members from each sorority, influences most State coeds. Our sororities have been in existence since 1931 and owe much of their success to the Council.

This body prevents haphazard competition, makes rules for rushing, and plans intersorority events, such as the annual Ball. Each year, two plaques are awarded—one for the Declamation and Sing and one for the best scholarship average.

MILITARY BALL

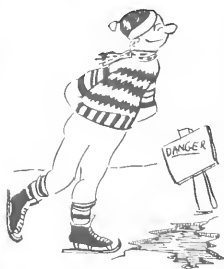

Early in November the Military Ball band—Hal McIntyre's seventeen-piece outfit—was announced by Chairman Harry Scollin. Posters decorated the campus. Junior and senior R.O.T.C. majors rode on their Army "hosses" in formation to Stockbridge Hall before "convo" with placards. On December 6, decorations arranged by a professional company with local help, special favors, and crowning of the honorary colonel added to the attractions of the Ball. Pasteboards, retailing at $3.50, sold by the hundreds.

"Will it snow, or..." Weather-worrying as usual, the three-class committee—headed by John Retallick—arranged a gala Winter Carnival which even rain could not spoil completely. Vice-Chairmen Frederick Burr and Spencer Potter, Treasurer Dan Levine, Secretary Norma Handforth, Social Chairman Peter Barreca, Walter Miles (Winter Sports), and Kenneth Howland (Publicity) were the others in charge of the Carnival, which is the largest all-school event of the year.

WINTER CARNIVAL

From sunrise until long after sundown, mothers were rushed from one event to another at the 1941 Mothers' Day on campus. Registration, a full-dress review of the R.O.T.C., a sports program, a modern dancing exhibition by coeds, a swimming meet, an Alviani-created musical program at Stockbridge, sorority declamations, and a Sunday band concert were the planned activities of the day. In spite of difficulties, the Mothers' Day committee presented the most entertaining Mothers' Day yet held.

MOTHERS' DAY

Welcomed by Chairman Jean Davis '42, five hundred fathers of State students went to classes and later enjoyed the military drill. After lunch at fraternities and sororities, they attended the State-Worcester Tech game, an evening banquet, and the annual Dads' Day show at which the college orchestra, President Baker, and the intersorority glee club also took part. Chairman of the show was Jack Heyman, Lambda Chi Alpha prexy. Akin to Mothers' Day, Dads' Day is an annual event.

INTER-"GREEK" DANCES

Most important spring formals are the Interfraternity Ball and the Intersorority Ball. In April the "Greekettes" plan their "romantic, ravishing" Ball, to which they lure unsuspecting males-about-campus. In May the fraternity men retaliate with the interfraternity dance-fest. Orchestras to suit jitterbug or sway-time fans entertain the hundreds of couples. Both committees have proved that the Old Drill Hall can be transformed with crepe paper, decorations, and solid work.

The crowning event of Commencement and the gala occasion of the year occurs during the second week of June: the Soph-Senior Hop. Since it is the major and final dance of the year, the committee in charge of preparations this year plans a "smooth" band and painstaking transformation of the "Old Grey Barn." Occurring long after publication of the INDEX, the only prediction possible is one based on the reputation of the wellknown committee members—the Sophomore-Senior Hop will be "tops."

THE MASSACHUSETTS STATE COLLEGE OUTING CLUB

Senior Bill Fuller gathers Outing Club members with his "gee-tar" and songs at a barn dance

With its square dances, bike trips, and hikes throughout New England, the State College Outing Club is literally the most active club on campus. Just looking at their hiking plans for the year can make your legs ache in sympathy. And to the lazy wonder of the campus, the Outing Club carries out those plans.

Howard Hunter, the busy president, is always about, putting up notices, calling meetings, and mounting people on bikes. And when the energetics have finished riding their bikes, they usually have square dances and quadrilles with a fiddle in the Drill Hall.

The Outing Club is not just exercising. During the past year, more than any other club, it has made friends at other colleges in New England. And in the most informal of ways—square dances at Mount Holyoke, canoe trips with Amherst and Dartmouth, week-end larks with Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute.

Now a member of an intercollegiate association of such groups, the club was host (with R.P.I.) to all at a week-end trip last fall. And, of course, it was a week end of hiking and dancing and singing—the classic formula of the Club.

Officers: '40 President—Howard Hunter, Vice-President—Milton Fortune, Treasurer—Talcott Edmister, Secretary—Sally Neilson, Secretary—Louise Heermance. Executive committee: Fuller, Douse, Miss Hartley, Miss Dunklee, and Mosher. Membership: 100.

HE lure of printer's ink...the glamour of grease-paint...the power of the speaker's platform...the mania for musical performances...these factors attract hundreds of students into extra-curricular activities. The Collegian, the INDEX, the Quarterly, the debating team, and the large number of musical groups have grown through the years to near-professional standards. Differing from most American colleges, Massachusetts State College gives no academic credits for yearbook work, journalism, or musical clubs—yet all these activities have equaled those subsidized in other colleges. The 1940 INDEX, for example, under the editorship of Edith Clark '40, received the First Class Honor Rating awarded by the National Scholastic Press Association for outstanding yearbooks throughout the country.

Advertising and Circulation Are Biggest Jobs of Business Board

"Without the business board, the Collegian could not completely function as a true representative of the student body," said Business Manager Robert Nottenburg. "The Collegian is a non-profit organization, and the only reward for service is academic credits and the satisfaction of accomplishment."

The circulation of the Collegian amounts to 1,850—about 1,300 copies are distributed to students, 400 to alumni and out-of-town subscribers, and 150 copies to advertisers.

Each week exchanges are made with colleges throughout the United States, Hawaii, and Mexico.

As a non-profit organization, the profits accrued from sales and advertising are placed into a sinking fund and used for expansion.

The twelve-man business board meets on Tuesday afternoons making up the contracting advertisement rates.

Complete coverage of the campus sports world has been this year's slogan of the Collegian sports board. Predicting, writing "pasts," and digging up articles on players and seasonal athletic programs has made a four-star hit with sports fans.

Running down the field for a journalistic touchdown, the board—composed of Alan Bell, Ray Jarvis, Robert Burke, Sid Murachver, Stan Cykowski,—has been "on the ball" in reporting all sports from football and basketball to interfr-

University of Massachusetts Most Important Collegian Stand of Year

1941 Campaign Included Editorials on Selective Service Act, Student Leader Day, Pseudo-Youth Organizations of Country

"The Collegian's most important editorial stand of the current year has been the campaign for the University of Massachusetts," stated Editor-in-Chief Ken Howland.

"We have tried to organize student action under the slogan, Graduate from the University of Massachusetts. The Collegian has been in the vanguard of those confident of ultimate success."

The explanation of the Selective Service Act, the encouragement of pseudo-youth organizations have been other major editorial stands undertaken during the course of the year.

Since a college campus forms a city in itself, the newspaper is as necessary an organ as it is in all communities. Students must be informed as to what is going on about them in order that they may formulate opinions and act accordingly. The policy of Massachusetts State College's paper is strict impartiality, presenting the news as it is received, and allowing a wide range for public viewpoint.

Columns, sports, features and news have formed the nucleus about which the paper has been constructed. Columnists present "Rhyme, Reason, Rhythm," "Our Colleagues," "Discussing Music," "Co-editing," and others to offer the student body various attitudes toward current interests, while features and sports present colorful news flashes from here and there along the news front.

The thanklessness of the editors' task has become rather traditional on campus.

By
ELINOR KOONZ '43

As Professor Ford once said, there has always been "an underlying student interest in literary matters." As early as 1882, two literary societies existed, one of which assembled its manuscripts in monthly longhand volumes. Subsequent publication, and attempts were the Squib, a humorous publication, and the Ynkhorne, a pamphlet of original poems.

The present Quarterly began in 1937, when Kenwood Ross made a year and a half of research and, as a result, issued a supplement to the College student newspaper—the Collegian. The Quarterly rapidly grew from two pages to eight pages and finally to the magazine and faculty are all included in the recent editions. Indeed, the present Quarterly is not usually student literary publication, edited by Peter Barreca and Mary Donahue during the past year.

If signs about us are to be interpreted as we prefer that they should, a great period of continued passion for this literary supplement lies directly ahead. Such factors as the sublime restlessness of our contributors in their constant search for more acute criteria of expression, and the increasingly severe constructive criticism which Quarterly editors receive from the faculty, from the students, and from sources outside the college—all amount the grateful acknowledgment which the editors present.

Of greatest encouragement to the editors is the realization that student manifestations of something deeper—a sincere interest in the evolution of the Quarterly. The editing staff has dedicated itself to bringing you a larger magazine that will establish itself for the duration of the College's existence, as a permanent and respected element of campus academic activity.

The College not only desires, but has great need of a permanent medium through which the tang of student art can find zestful expression. In this achievement will be found a true means of reflecting our inner Muse-inspired forces of life.

Literature is life: the scientific monograph, the novel, the economic survey, and poetry, are all definite parts of Experience. The Collegian Quarterly offers the student an outlet for the expression of his ideas and Experience—in this way, the Quarterly is part of the Life on this campus. The Editors urge all the men and women of Massachusetts State, Science as well as Liberal Arts Majors, Freshmen as well as Seniors, to take an active interest in their Collegian Quarterly.

"The Collegian Quarterly is a Literary Journal to which all students, faculty-members, and alumni are invited to contribute," say the Editors.

The 1941

Compared to the INDEX of years ago, the 1941 INDEX has tripled the effort in its preparation. Most important is not the $5,400.00 budget nor improved technical facilities, but the human factor—the twenty-seven board members following a clock-like program for business and editorial work.

Editor-in-Chief Chet Kuralowicz (Simon Legree), designing the INDEX with Engraver Fitch, conferring with Printer Valz, tête-a-tête with Montana and Texas editors at Lake Michigan, checking with Dr. Goldberg, post-assigning assignments, driving board members for "productive efficiency," living day and night at the INDEX office to ship copy in before deadlines....

Business Manager George Hamel, supervising the sale of '41 books to faculty, sleuthing for ads, arranging Charlie Iannello's action and group pictures, checking with Howard-Wes-son's cost-analysis forms, signing contracts by the grace of God and Professor Dickinson, struggling under the iron hand of the R.O.T.C., scheduling, planning....

Statistics Editor Lois Doubleday, keeping the statistics boys and girls on their toes to get statistics for the Andover Press, typing, checking, double-checking, copy-reading, proof-reading, pinch-hitting as literary editor, acting as INDEX ambassador to faculty and administration... Sports Editor Tom Johnson, nurturing the athletic section...Assistant Business Manager Alden Blodgett, acting as clean-up man in the business and photography departments...Statistics Editor Ken Witt, helping to collect statistics, getting ads, finding time for the INDEX in spite of Doc Rohr...Associate Editor Dave Kagan, revising the INDEX constitution, polishing off general work...Photography Editor Dana Keil, shooting sports and senior informals...Margaret Marsh and Henrietta Kreczko, taking shots of senior coeds, sororities, and current campus events...Sumner Kaplan, faithfully typing his weekly quota...

Literary Staff—versatile Mary Donahue, effervescent Dario Politella, hard-to-catch Herb Weiner, and thorough Elinor Koonz—creating copy for the presses...Ed Sprague, most efficient statistics standby...Fran Lappen, Joe Gordon, Doris Johnson, George Litchfield, Gould Ketchen, Charlie Geer, Stan Polchlopek, and "Bunny" Atwood—upholding their share of business, statistics, sports, and photography work...and finally, Art Editor Foster Goodwin and his staff of Rembrandts—Brad Greene and Babe Nesin—adding the finishing touch with their sketches....

The M.S.C. Band

The State College Band made its first appearance of the year at the U. of Conn. game. The snappy players formed their letters with a tricky elision method which melted one letter into another as though by magic. At the W.P.I. tangle, the band formed T-E-C-H, M-S-C, and H-I D-A-D. At Amherst game, however, the weatherman took a hand and deluged the countryside. "Backus was willin'," though, and the band appeared in full undress, attempting valiantly to cheer the team on with the torrential downpour "wettin' their whistles."

Student Manager Eldridge carried on as the mainstay of the group, and accomplished a grand piece of organization, assisted by Janes, Benemelis, and Edminster. The credit for the results of constant disciplining and planning is due these Juniors, for their work was rendered the more difficult by the absence of faculty assistance given to other musical groups on campus.

Nor must we forget the enthusiastic performances of Drum Majorettes Marion Avery and Jean Carlisle, who were certainly instrumental in drawing forth from the stands the spirit necessary to bolster morale in the scrimmage line. And certainly the Band could not function without the work of Bandmaster Farnam who achieves each year the organization of the group from a small nucleus of veteran players.

Every Thursday night the Mem Building rings during instrumental rehearsal of the band in preparation for games or concerts. Marching rehearsals during the fall were held in the cage.

Presenting its annual Christmas concert on December 16, 1940, the band gave a variety of classical, semi-classical, and novelty numbers and arrangements. A successful dress rehearsal was held on December 11 when the band played for the inmates and staff of the Veteran's Hospital in Leeds. The swing favorite, "MacNamara's Band," had widest audience appeal. Trumpeter "Bucky" Davis and Clarinetist Bob King played instrumental solos. Majorettes twirled a special arrangement of Sabres and Spurs. Student Leader George Litchfield "took over" for part of the concert.

The convocation appearance and the spring Mothers' Day concert were the principal concluding appearances of the band. Manager Al Eldridge's enthusiasm, tempered by his insistence on hard work by every member, produced a band that Massachusetts State College is proud to acknowledge. In October, Bandmaster Charles Farnam prophesied a top-notch band for 1941, and his prophecy has become a reality. This extensive program has furthered State's fame.

This year's Band was the bright spot of State activities and was pleasing both to the eye and to the ear.

1000-Mile Debating Trip This Year

"Argument in its purest and most stimulating form"—this, in short, is debating. All in a stride, the debating society takes problems of national defense, of foreign relations, and of domestic policies. Adding to these issues the opportunity to gain valuable experience in public speaking, forensic activities constitute one of the vital aspects of State's extra-curricular program.

Spread over a 2,000-mile radius, the varsity team's schedule this year has been full and diversified.

Before opening its official season, the varsity spent most of its time in "girding its loins" with the coaching of Professor Walter E. Prince. Practice debates with Amherst College and A.I.C. of Springfield formed part of the pre-season program. In the middle of February the team fired its official opening volley in a duel with Boston University. Afterward came duels with Holy Cross, a return engagement with B. U. and a meeting with Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

The usual 2,000-mile trip which the varsity has made for years was shortened to 1,000 miles in 1941. One reason offered by President Herb Weiner and Manager Fran Shea was that one thousand miles in a car filled with glib-tongued, argumentative souls was just enough for anybody's nerves. A more important reason, however, was the increased opportunity which it offered the debaters to display their talents in week-end trips to Boston, Troy, and New York.

On their journey through the South this April, the team spent most of its time on the proposition. "Resolved, that the nations of the western hemisphere should form a permanent union or alliance in defense against foreign aggression."

The same resolution was the topic of the annual convocation debate held this year with a woman's team from the American International College.

Meyers and Alviani Direct Sinfonietta

"Face-lifting" is what the old State College orchestra needed, and this year the Sinfonietta has made its successful debut. In its first year of existence, this musical group, under the inspirational direction of Dorie Alviani and Fred Meyers, has made itself indispensable to the numerous student activities.

Created in answer to a call for a smaller instrumental group, the Sinfonietta replaced the old orchestra and relieved pressure on other campus musical organizations. It also fills a need for a musical unit which can be more flexible and more adaptable to the varied campus needs than a symphony orchestra.

How well it has succeeded is answered in its year's activities. It has accompanied musical shows, provided incidental music for dramatic productions, performed at concerts, churches, and convocations. It has even broadcasted.

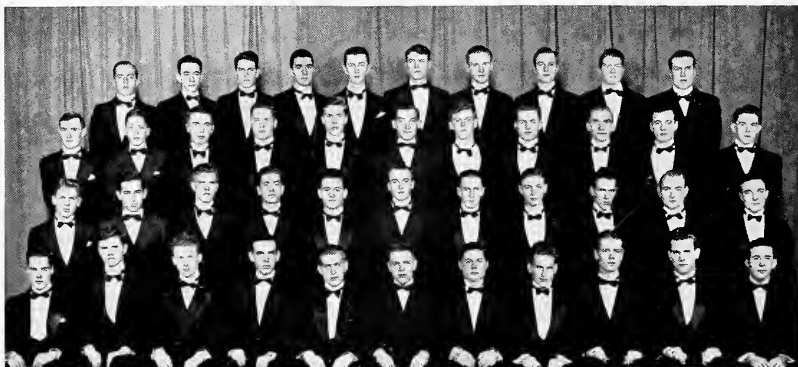

Making its debut at convocation in November, the Sinfonietta plunged into a schedule which many times called for appearances away from campus. It lent aid to productions of "H.M.S. Pinafore" and "Outward Bound." At Dads' Day, twice at convocation, and at the Music Festival in May, it provided excellent full-program concerts.

The Sinfonietta has performed the difficult task of adding new lustre to State's already sparkling musical activities.

Men's Glee Club Travels and Records

Singing their fame throughout New England, the Men's Glee Club has fast become one of the most popular organizations on campus and now ranks as one of the most polished musical groups in Massachusetts.

During the past year the Glee Club has appeared in College concerts, in surrounding towns, and even on the radio. In October it made a series of eight recordings to be sent to alumni in all parts of the United States. During the same month, the club also appeared on two important broadcasts over the air. A set of recordings of college songs, made in the last week of February, has been grouped in an album now on sale.

All these appearances have been made possible by the weeks of rehearsals, the efficient direction of Music Director Alviani, and the spirit of all the members and the student body as a whole.

This year the Club has been enlarged to fifty voices, selected from ninety-two competitors. Thirty-two of the singers comprise the Varsity Men's Glee Club, which travels for out-of-town engagements. Another advance this year was the donation of one dollar by each member for the purchase of music.

The Club appeared on campus in the '40 Dads' Day Show and at a second-semester Social Union program. At Christmas it combined with the Women's Glee Club in the First Church of Amherst, at College Vespers, and at the Christmas convocation; the featured song was Handel's "Messiah."

This spring it took part in the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "H.M.S. Pinafore," one of the most elaborate musical Alviani-produced hits of the year.

Besides these appearances, the club sang in Amherst on "Amherst Week-End," at a February concert in Ware, at a Westfield combined concert on March 7, 1941, and also on festival programs. It went on tour the last week in February, attended a Religious Conference, and made a successful spring trip.

Coeds' Glee Club Largest in History

Though not a brashly new group on campus, the Women's Glee Club has made a leaping jump in size. In the past year the coeds have not only come forth in new uniforms, but have increased from a mere thirty-six to a resounding fifty. It seems a broad metamorphosis; still, with the increased instruction in the music department, it is well justified.

Maintaining State's musical fame in soprano, the Women's Glee Club sang at the March program of the Social Union, at the Religious Conference, in the later operetta, and—as a new notion—in recording for part of the new State album of songs.

They have also had their share of broadcasting and (perhaps unknown to campus circles) they have sung in Ware and given their annual performance at the Grace Church in Holyoke.

The coordination which single management gives the Women's Glee Club and other musical groups make such programs as the Social Union possible; but it cannot impair the individuality of this group. As a prelude to the Religious Conference or as part of a variety program, they are unmistakable in their harmony.

The growth of the Club in a few years from a handful of coeds who had an urge for singing to the widely-competed-for group of fifty at the present has proved their musical ability. As one of the coed singers expressed herself:

"Glee club work takes a good bite out of my schedule, crowded as it is. But I wouldn't give it up for the world."

Postponed because of a crowded schedule, the combined men's and women's glee club concert for Social Union was presented on March 12. After the operetta performance, the Club participated in the All-American Concert during Music Week, May 11-17 and later made its spring trip.

Coed equivalent of the Bay Staters—though different in number—are the Bay Statettes. Overflowing from the established clubs, the Bay Statettes prove students' musical ability.

Composed of six girls of different classes, the group made its first full-fledged appearance in Ware in early February. To Rita Moseley '42, Winifred Giles '41, Meriel VanBuren '42, Helen Van Meter '43, S. M. Burgess '41, and Janet Milner '43 the INDEX gives encouragement for continued hit performances.

On campus they first passed the student censor in the oft-mentioned Social Union program in which all musical groups took part. Like the Bay Staters and the Statesmen, they dote on negro spirituals, but keep their spark of individuality in singing such modern bits as Templeton's "Humming Blues." The ultimate place in the musical scheme proposed by Doric Alviani is probably their merging with the male double quartet to form an impressive group.

Statettes

Women were taboo on Shakespeare's stage in 1599; but the Coed Quartet of State is vital to the Bowker stage in 1941. Their quality performances have helped to make Massachusetts State College a "musical college."

The "Statette trio," which Director Alviani organized a few semesters ago, evolved into a quartet this year. This solo group now consists of Betty Moulton, Peggy Berthiaume, and Gladys Archibald—who are members of two years' standing—and Marge Stanton, the new addition.

Locally, the coeds sang at the Poultry and the Amherst Extension Conferences. Then, besides making a broadcast, they appeared in the Amherst Methodist Church.

The Statettes sang twice in Athol—once before the Athol Professional Women's Club—and appeared at the well-known Tufts' Week-End. Concerts were also given in South Deerfield and Worcester.

Washburn, Hubbard, McGurl, Gould

Statesmen

When the Statesmen give four concerts in three days, when their studies pile up, when they get about four or five hours of sleep a night—they grin and like it!

The quartet, composed of Stuart Washburn, Wendell Hubbard, Fred McGurl, and John Gould, has given one radio broadcast, as well as appearing in numerous local and out-of-town concerts.

On campus the group sang in the "Campus Varieties" program. During the year they have journeyed as far as Boston and Hartford. In Boston the quartet sang in the Hotel Bradford, and, while in the latter city, they performed at an Agricultural Association program. The Statesmen also appeared in a Tufts' weekend program in the eastern part of the state. Following this, they took part in concerts in Grafton, Williamsburg, and in a spring concert at Athol. They also sang at the Y.M.C.A. Conference in Pittsfield, where they remained for two days. Their crowded schedule shows their ability to put songs over with a bang!

"We're the boys with a TRA-LA-LA-LA..." Not a line from a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta the above—rather it might be the theme song of the newest of the new: the Bay Staters.

Another of the increasing parts of the State musical whole, the Bay Staters this year form their nucleus about eight men—Wallace Wyman '41, Henry Bralit '43, Richard Andrew '43, John Nye '41, Foster Goodwin '41, Merton Lamden '41, Albert Rouffa '41, and Alton Cole ex-'41.

Having had their virgin rehearsals only last January, they sang in the annual Social Union program and in the operetta. Possessing great versatility, they have dashed, in campus performances, from negro spirituals to college songs and then jumped into "I With I Were a Thugar Bun"—and this simply with lightheartedness rather than incongruity. Their "Williams Fight Song," "Navy Blue and Gold," and "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" have caught their listeners' fancy.

ELL WEEK and Sorority Rushing reveal the lighter side of State College fraternities and sororities. Rounding out the average student's life at college, the fifteen Greek-letter houses on campus build life-long friendships. The houses are "Home, Sweet Home" for a large number of students during the school year. Other functions enrich the comradeship of Greek life. Interfraternity and intersorority sports provide keen competition for prize cups awarded in May. Greek "sings" and declamations encourage talent. Intersorority and interfraternity skits create fun for actors and audience alike. Awards for house appearance lead to hard work and pride in these "secret" student societies. And finally... Hell Week... adding a picturesque overtone to fraternity and sorority life.

CHANGE is the keyword for State sports in 1940-41. At the end of the football season, a new coach for the next season was announced. The basketball team started its schedule with a new mentor, Lou Bush, and ended with Fred Ellert. In hockey, John Janusas led the State team. And completing the picture of changing coaches, the 1941 baseball team is under the tutelage of Fran Riel.

Policies also changed in this eventful if not successful year. A training table was set up for the football team, thus aiding the morale of players. A football program was also initiated. Basketball spectators learned of substitutions through a loudspeaker, and the band added color to the games. These changes have already helped to make a difference in basketball fortunes and, we hope, will do the same in other sports.

Massachusetts loses in home game 9-3 to famed Keaney club from Rhode Island

Injuries Rob Football Team

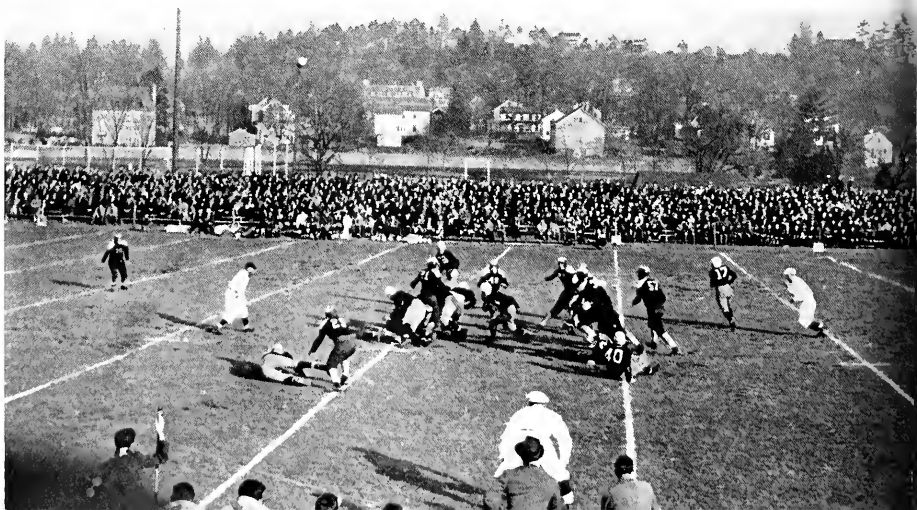

When a "breakless" game is invented, the State College football team should really go to town, for they certainly lost their share on breaks this year. One out of nine are the brutal statistics of the win record, but, although it sounds suspiciously like recent INDEX write-ups, these figures do not tell the entire story. Undoubtedly the greatest blow of the season was the loss of Captain Ralph Simmons. The 230-pound guard, who was named to the All-New England team in 1939, was forced from the line-up just at mid-season, suffering from a neck injury, probably sustained in the Norwich game. The worth of this Clemson transfer, who always had trouble holding up his pants, is best summed up by a quotation from a pre-season article by Francis Wallace in the Saturday Evening Post:

"Ralph Simmons, of Massachusetts State, could play on anybody's team."

Several other injuries robbed the team either of first team material or valuable reserves.

The opener with Springfield College found State almost helpless except for a very few plays, on one of which speedy Bud Evans scored the only Maroon touchdown. Springfield, meanwhile, picked up two tallies rather easily, the latter on a blocked kick. The following week, the Statesmen really outclassed the UConn Nutmeggers, but ended on the wrong side of the 13-0 decision. Two penalties and a fumble broke up State's several goal-line attacks. Captain Simmons on defense and signal-caller Matty Ryan on offense were the bright spots of the team. Donnelly of Connecticut accounted for both of the rival scores with his great running and passing.

Season Record—Lone Victory

Really stiff opposition was the cause for the third defeat. The Norwich Horsemen started fast and quickly acquired two touchdowns. Later in the game, a field goal and another touchdown brought the score to 24-0. Bullock's carrying and Freitas' passing threatened somewhat, but the nearest approach to the Norwich pay-stripe was the 12-yard line. Good defensive work was turned in by Simmons and Brady, backing up the line.

The following week's home game against the far-famed Keaney club from Rhode Island State saw Massachusetts State playing one of its best games in recent years to hold the father-son combine to a 9-3 score. The team took its only victory from Worcester the next Saturday and overpowered the Engineers all the way. Captain Simmons was forced to remain on the sidelines due to an obscure neck-and-back injury. Freitas and Santin carried to advantage and Ryan turned in a good game with a forty-three-yard run back for a touchdown.

A heavy downpour made a swimming pool out of Amherst's Pratt Field and slowed down the three Sabrina speedsters: Mulroy, Blood, and Sweeney. Despite the weather these three alternated to push over a touchdown at the beginning of the second quarter. Near the end of the same period, triple-threat Bob Blood broke loose and galloped through the mud seventy-two yards to a touchdown to make the score 14-0.

In each of the last three games the Maroon team was rather badly trounced. Under lights at New London, the Middies of the Coast Guard Academy pushed the ball across three times. Thompson scored all three for the Academy with Shepard setting them up. A recovered fumble on the 38 by Gil Santin, led to Ben Freitas' lone State score. The following week the Rensselaer Engineers from Troy, New York, pushed across four touchdowns, one of them within the first few minutes of play. The State line gave considerable ground and was particularly susceptible to the slicing of quarterback Freddie Schwartz. Tufts finished off the schedule in a hard fought game at Medford. Although the team really turned in a good showing, the final score was 19-6.

Besides the injured Captain Simmons, the only senior regular was 200-pound Joe Larkin. After his conversion from an end, Joe turned in a consistently good job at the tackle berth. Joe was also chosen to serve as field captain in the absence of Simmons and carried on the latter's enthusiastic leadership.

Junior John Brady's worth can be best shown by the fact that he was, first of all, chosen to receive the Allan Leon Pond Memorial Medal, and secondly, chosen by his teammates to lead the next year's football team. Johnny probably played more actual game minutes than any other member of the team. His job as snapper-back was well-nigh perfect.

Other juniors did their share and can be counted upon to be out there working hard next year. Benny Freitas, well-known as a plunger and passer since his freshman year, gained more than his share of the yardage. Bullock, Seery and Evans also were valuable backfield men. In the line, besides Captain-elect Brady, Carl Werme and Paul Dwyer played good ball.

The class of 1943 contributed much toward this year's team and gained a lot of experience which should stand the squad to good stead next year. Outstanding for the sophs was 157-pound Matty Ryan, who called signals. In addition, he snagged numerous passes both offensively and defensively and at the safety position stopped many prospective touchdown runs. Stan Salwak did some classy running from the halfback position, as did husky Gil Santin. The latter looked good on the defense also. Ed Larkin, Gross, and Field also saw service. In the line, Billy Mann was the stand-out and played clear through several games at his tackle position. Steeves and Coffin saw plenty of duty at the ends, while Warner, McDonough and Crain were at the guard holes quite regularly.

An able addition to the coaching staff this year has been rugged John Janusas who has had charge of the line material. The resignation of Ebb Caraway has left a vacancy which will be filled by Walter Hargesheimer who played with Minnesota in 1933 and comes from an Illinois high school.

An innovation this year has been a training table for the squad for supper after the heavier practice sessions. Close connection of this kind increases the friendships among the players and aids morale.

As shown in the outline of players above, there will be plenty of veteran material around next year for Hargesheimer.

Soph Hoopsters Add Scoring Punch

"New life!" was given to varsity basketball this year with Lou Bush as coach. It was through his efforts that the band played at games and a loudspeaker system was installed. When he left for the army in the middle of the season, a distinct loss was felt. A wise choice, however, was the selection of German professor Fred Ellert '30 to finish the season. Basketball next year is to be under Hargesheimer.

Though seniors on the squad were few, they decided many a game. Captain Bill Walsh proved to be a capable leader and upheld his reputation as a fine guard and scorer. Two other seniors who saw service—Hank Parzych and Vern Smith—became co-captains after the Connecticut game when Walsh was declared ineligible for further games.

The junior class promises to add power next year. This year Triggs was a steady performer; Prodyna more than once flipped in important baskets; Sparks and Hurley also starred.

It was the sophomore class, however, that gave the team most of its material and a good share of scoring punch. Center Ted Bokina consistently scored more than ten points a game. Podolak deserves high praise especially for his defensive work. Malloy, T. Kelly, and Bubriski also played a bang-up game.

Five wins and nine defeats is not an outstanding record, but there were four more victories than last year, and most of the losses were close and exciting. The season got under way with a slam-bang game against Trinity which ended with a 54-53 count for the Hartford team. Not to be disheartened, the Statesmen came back in the next game to beat Hamilton 41-34 with Bokina and Maloy scoring 25 points between them.

"A study in Hands" as Statesmen and Terriers fight for control of the ball. B. U. swamped State by 54-34 during this game at the Hub City. At left is Sophomore Ed Podolak who has been doing brilliant defensive work all season.

The next two games were defeats by Clark and Springfield by the scores of 61-42 and 44-37 respectively. The Amherst game was undoubtedly the thriller of the year. When the Jeffmen came to the cage with a veteran team as decided favorites, amazed spectators saw State fight its way to a one-point victory over a flashy Amherst club after a last-minute basket by Parzych. Another win in the Little Three was garnered the next night by taking Williams to the tune of 48-34.

In an attempt to make a clean sweep of the Little Three, State pushed Wesleyan to the limit; but the visitors ended on top with a 45-41 score. Rhode Island State routed the State team by a score of 84-39 though not without trouble. The Statesmen gave Lou Bush a send-off with a victory over Middlebury, 40-30. Fred Ellert was coaching as Tufts beat the local boys 35-32 in a closely fought contest—the second time in eight years that Jumbos have beaten the Maroon.

The University of Connecticut tripped Massachusetts State in the next game with a 57-37 shellacking. With a score of 54-34, B. U. took over State. Then, Coast Guard was the fifth and final victim of the year when State beat the officers 40-34 on the cage floor. In the finale of the season, Worcester Tech rode over State with a 51-42 victory.

Ted Bokina and Mike Frodyma cover a B. U. man with his eye on the basket. Bokina was the star scorer during the "jinxed" Boston University game and all season. At right is Sophomore Stan Bubriski who played a bang-up game.

Baseball Staggers in the '40 Season

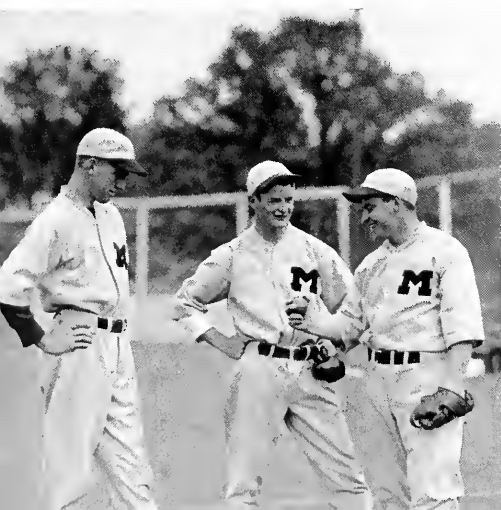

Coach E. Caraway and Manager Johnson '41

The 1940 baseball season is the story of one man Pitcher Carl Twyble figured in every game but one, and that one proved to be the most severe shellacking of the year. The team's poor showing of three wins and nine defeats would have been even worse without Carl's arm, and it might have been much better if he had been supported by a team that could field. Time after time he held his opponents in the palm of his hand when a weak infield hit or pop fly would be mishandled, and the game would be thrown away. Many a "hit" by opponents was a simple misjudgment by fielders, and yet the earned run average per game by Twyble was only 1.8. When Carl faltered in a game, it was unfortunate, for Coach Caraway could not afford to risk one of the sophomore hurlers in a relief role. The proof of Carl's ability is amply shown by the fact that the Springfield Nationals signed him after graduation and that he baffled the best the Eastern League had to offer with his twirling.

The rest of the pitching staff consisted of three sophomores all of whom showed some promise in pre-season practice but who never lived up to expectations. Jim Bullock proved the steadiest of the three, but even he never pitched a whole game. His control was his main asset. Ace Thayer might have been more successful if he had more control; but when he started to throw balls, "strike" was a word for a mythical event. George Kimball, too, had more than a prayer on his pitch, yet it was often lucky if his fast ball would come near enough to the plate for the catcher to stop. There are hopes that these men have been able to iron out some of these difficulties during the past summer. The success of the 1941 team will probably depend on them.

The most outstanding player in line after Carl Twyble was Captain Warren Tappin. Always the most dependable fielder on the team, his batting in the last part of the season was almost phenomenal. He ended the season with an average over 400. Warren was the only man on the team to whom a ball could be hit with certainty that it would be stopped. Reputed for his good arm, he also had a good eye for flies.

The infield was weak although it did not fall down completely. Al Irzyk, Howie Rudge, Hank Parzych, Bill Walsh, and Red Mullany made frequent brilliant plays. On several occasions, these boys came through with timely hits, especially Bill Walsh, who seemed to have the knack of putting infield clouts "where they ain't." Yet, when a game was tight and a stout defense was needed, balls galore would dribble through legs, and wild throws were plentiful. Most of the time this infield looked like good material, but as Ebb Caraway remarked, "A team is good only when it wins the close ones."

The outfield, with the exception of Tappin, was not remarkable either for its merits or its faults. John Blasko showed good hitting against slow ball pitching, but his inexperience in the field was often painfully apparent. Walt Miles and Russ Clarke proved fairly dependable in the field although neither was strong at bat. The catching staff consisted of "Big Frank" Spencer and fiery Bob Triggs. The two alternated throughout the season and gave a steady, if not a brilliant, performance.

Of these men, Tappin, Twyble, Blasko, Irzyk and Rudge graduated, leaving a large number of men with which to build a winning combination. Hank Parzych and Stan Jackimezyk (who last year coached third base because of an injury) are the co-captains for the 1941 season. If some of the sophomore pitchers can produce, the new baseball coach will have a somewhat easier task than that which faced Caraway in 1940. Experience should remove the tightness of last year's infielders and should improve the hitting. Of course, a successful team depends on a number of "if's"—time alone will tell the baseball future for State. We know this, and it is not "blarney"; the team on the field this spring is fighting for wins. The boys fought last year and would have been on top more often if lack of skill and polish had not hampered them.

The 1940 season began in encouraging style with a convincing victory over the University of Connecticut. Twyble pitched a creditable game, never meeting with any real trouble. The team put on a shining performance after it slapped out fourteen hits. The six Connecticut runs, made chiefly through errors, were obscured by State's piling up of the eleven runs.

Bowdoin and Williams, respectively characterized by the Collegian as "weak" and "medium," followed Connecticut in order but not in quality. Bowdoin used two pitchers who had difficulty getting the ball to the plate, and State made a grand total of four hits and two runs. In the meantime, Twyble was allowing ten singles and three runs. The only State man who looked good was John Blasko. He banged out two solid hits. Since Williams had been the scapegoat for the State power house in previous seasons, Ebb gambled on Ace Thayer as starting pitcher. The Ephmen proceeded to romp through all three sophomore hurlers for eleven runs and throttled the State attack with sophomore pitcher Spaulding, who was one of the best twirlers seen all the season.

Carl Twyble took four innings in which to warm up in the next game which was with Amherst. His smooth pitching from the fifth inning on did not overcome the lead made by Amherst in the third. A spectacular rally by the Statesmen in the sixth, which produced four runs, merely served to show the possibilities of the stumbling State team. More than one observer was astounded at the spirit and potential power of the club in this rally of the game.

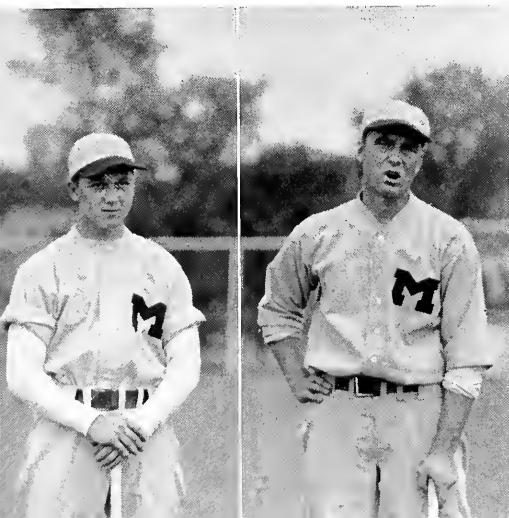

The next game, a return bout with Connecticut State, resulted in the second victory of the season for the Maroon. The puzzling thing about the two wins over Connecticut was that the Nutmeg team outshone considerably some of the teams that drubbed State.

The next three games, all defeats, put State in the doghouse. Tufts eked out a 4-3 victory after Twyble relieved Jim Bullock in the sixth. "Dumb" base running principally caused the defeat. The Wesleyan game was the thriller of the season, lasting thirteen innings and ending with a home run! Bullock pitched eight good innings, but errors threw away a good lead. Twyble held the opponents until the thirteenth. When trying to protect a one-run lead gained in the first half of that game, he allowed a homer with one man on base. New Hampshire then invaded State and emerged with a 5-2 victory. The Wildcat club was one of the classiest outfits seen on the local diamond.

The following contest produced the third victory of the year, a 9-2 massacre of Lowell Textile at Lowell. Ace Thayer started and was effective until the fifth when he walked five straight batters, and King Carl had to be called in. State had a field day with thirteen hits. Frank Spencer clouted the longest hit of the game and managed to stagger to second.

Springfield eked out a decision in the next game to the humiliation of the State team. The team had wanted to end up the season with three victories, but its hitting fell off appreciably after the Lowell game.

Amherst capped the desolate season with another defeat which even the returning alumni could not enjoy. Fireball Stott throttled the Statesmen while Carl Twyble faltered in the ninth and had to be relieved.

'40 Cross Country Team Outstanding

An outstanding team of the year was the Varsity Cross Country with five consecutive dual wins against one defeat. Five men bore the brunt of the burden, with little replacement available, and the injury jinx could at any time have upset the whole team.

Stand-out runner of the team, Chet Putney

Unquestionably, the stand-out runner of the 1940 team was Senior Chester Putney. As captain of the 1939 club Chet was almost constantly handicapped because of weak ankles. This year, however, skillful care kept him from this worry. Chet took a good deal of "joshing" concerning his native state, but was always ready to give as good as he received. As a runner and as a personality, he will never be forgotten at State.

A close second was Junior William Kimball, the team's fighting captain. In spirit, training, and running Captain Kimball set an example for the whole squad.

The only sophomore on the squad was diminutive Russell MacDonald, who surprised his teammates by never finishing less than third. The other two members of the regular team were Juniors Bradford Greene and David Morrill. Both turned in spots of good running and should be "right in there" next season. Only other point scorers were Richard Hayward '41 and Harold Mosher '42.

State Runners Win Five Dual Meets

Bright spot in the first meet as the Northeastern Huskies defeated State was Putney's drive in the stretch. From there on, the club was not topped in a dual meet. M.I.T. was the first victim with a score of 23-33. The following week, Worcester Tech tasted defeat. The score was 18-43, and Kimball and Putney just nosed out Worcester's Ken Hunt. Although two Indians crossed the line first, a triple tie of the two State leaders plus MacDonald, followed closely in eighth place by Morrill, gave the local team a three-point margin.

The following week at Wesleyan, the same Springfield team edged State by ten points to give the Maroon and White a third behind Connecticut U.'s perfect score. The Amherst-State dual run in conjunction with this ended in an 18-38 loss for the Jeffs.

At the New England Intercollegiates, the Derby Dalers edged Springfield by one place to finish eighth. Putney's 35th was State's best. A fitting climax for the season was the Trinity meet with five Statemen ahead of Trinity's first.

Prospects for next year seem very bright for Coach Derby's plodders, with Putney the only graduate. Several Freshmen should add needed reserve strength to give a perfect season.

The 1941 Winter Track team came out at just .500 in the books, but managed in the process to shatter several records. The relay team split even, winning its first K. of C. race in a decade, only to be called out on a fluke disqualification. At the B.A.A. events, Worcester Tech nosed out the Derby quartet by one second.

In the regular winter meets, State also broke even. The Connecticut team was the victim of a 53-28 score, and Northeastern took the Derby men in the other dual. In the former, two records fell—Chet Putney bettering the mile time by .2 seconds and Alan Bell adding a half-inch to the broad jump record. At the Northeastern match, Junior Bill Wall set a new college record and tied for a new cage record with the bar at 5 ft. 10½ inches.

At the home triangular meet, State rolled up 65 points to take Worcester Tech and Springfield. Bill Wall scored a dual victory taking the 35-yard hurdles and the high jump, while Ed O'Connor and Brad Greene showed up well. At the next threesome meet, Tufts forced State to second with Worcester third.

Spring Track Team Lacks Strength

Lacking team strength, the State spring track club of 1940 turned in one win out of three for a less than average season. A few stand-out men were about all that State could put in the field last year. Ed O'Connor '41 was undoubtedly the season's outstanding performer and won more than his share of the short distance runs. In recognition of these feats, he was elected to captain the 1941 team. Following close behind in wins amassed was Captain Bob Joyce '40. Jack Crimmins '41 was the other scoring speedster.

After an 83-to-43 win over Trinity in the first meet of the season, hopes were high for the remainder of the meets. But Tufts picked off eleven firsts to make a rather one-sided contest.

Although the Connecticut meet was rather close, the UConn's came out ahead, chiefly by virtue of sweeping all places in the long distance runs. At the Eastern Intercollegiates, Dick Curtis '41 was the only Statesman to gain a place. As defending javelin champion, he pulled down only third. Jack Crimmins '41 in the hurdles and Bill Wall '42 in the 220 both narrowly missed qualification.

Rogers' Water Circus Is Top Sport

W. Avery . R. Hall . C. P. Jones . H. McCallum

J. Prymak . L. Gare . A. Koulias

"Miracle coach of New England" is the phrase which the last two yearbooks have used for Joe Rogers, and the 1941 INDEX will stick to that precedent, for once again, the swimming team has excelled in the win column. By taking one triangular contest and five dual meets, while dropping two, the 1941 tank-men have, for the third consecutive year, turned in the best showing of any State athletic team.

Manager Bardwell '41 and Coach Joe Rogers

Once again, Joe Jodka of Lawrence was the outstanding individual performer for the 1941 water squad. This smiling junior, who last year cracked the New England Intercollegiate breast stroke record, succeeded in beating his own mark at this season's first meet. Joe's record is 2:25.2 which is 0:4.4 seconds better than his 1940 time. In addition the husky swimmer later appeared independently at Providence and pulled down the American A.A.U. junior 220-yard breaststroke record.

"Win" Avery has been turning in consistently good showing for two years, specializing in the 50-yard free style. In the sophomore class there are also a couple of performers who will be right there next year. George Tilley has been a regular member of the medley relay team and has swum the backstroke event, while Byron Schiller is a diver who has shown improvement this season. Of the freshmen, "Bud" Hall turned in the best record, having placed well in several New England A.A.U. meets this year.

Credit in the senior class must be more widely distributed, for there are five members of the '41 class who added materially to team strength. Bob Hall has probably turned in the most actual wins; but Coffey, Jones, McCallum, and Prymak have been around for three years, giving substantial accounts of themselves. These men will be sorely missed when the 1942 squad begins its drilling.

The team started the season in rather poor physical shape. And with a winning streak of two seasons to maintain they were apprehensive. Worcester Tech succumbed easily enough in the opener, but the Rogersmen came back from vacation to cut short their win record with a 50-25 defeat by Williams.

Then the Statesmen opened up, dunking UConn. in their own pool 47-28. Next, Wesleyan was handed a first defeat of the year; Joe Jodka won the breast stroke, taking second in the 440 free style and swimming a leg of the 300 medley relay.

The following week, "Win" Avery set a new college 50-yard free style record of 24.6, as Coast Guard sank 47-28. Union got a real drubbing as the Maroon team took all first and four seconds, ending the home season with a 60-13 score.

B. U. was sadly deficient at the season's only triangular meet held in M.I.T.'s new half-million dollar pool. So, the contest was between the Engineers and Statesmen—with the locals nosing out a 69-62 win. The following night Joe's chlorine crew competed at the Bowdoin pool and—despite wins by Avery, Hall, and Jodka—came home "on their shield" with a defeat of 51-24.

Competition at the New Englands in Cambridge was "pretty stiff." The medley relay team of Tilley, Hall, and Jodka scored a third in their event, while Joe Jodka in addition placed third in the 220-yard free style and finished off a glorious undefeated season with a first in his favored event, the 200-yard breast stroke.

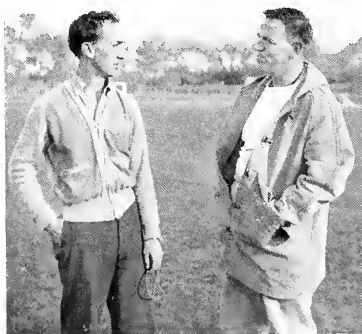

Briggs Builds Strong Soccer Squad

1940 Soccer Captain Frank Simons . . . Right halfback Clem Burr and Dartmouth "Indian" fight in tie game October 5, 1940

"Two wins, two tie games, and three defeats," reads the record book for the 1940 soccer season. A fair season—but undoubtedly the big achievement of the year was the building-up process. Several outstanding men have been developed, all of whom have at least one more year of soccer at State.

Manager Motroni and Coach "Larry" Briggs

Through the entire season, Coach Briggs carried on his well-liked coaching methods which have won for him a far better than .500 average for the eleven years of coaching the Maroon booters. A glance over the list of lettermen shows that Larry has built a sizable nucleus toward next year's team.

Benefiting by last year's experience, the '42 element of the team has exhibited Trojan spunk in all games. Gib Arnold and Bob Mullany, both small but extremely fast forwards, booted the ball all around opposing teams. Lambie Erickson (Captain-elect) and Spence Potter who are both huskier men, proved valuable either in the forward or center lines.

In the Class of '43, Callahan, Gizien-ski, and Podolak were all stand-outs. Jim Callahan, another small forward, showed skill in whipping the ball around. Stan Gizien-ski held up the center halfback position after Erickson was forced from the line-up while Ed Podolak was practically invincible in the fullback slot. Both of these men should have a better than even chance as New England or Eastern choices. Howard Bangs, also a sophomore, had experience in the goal and should be ready to take over for Vern Smith—outstanding goalie of the past two years.

Biggest loss to the coming '41 season is Sol Klaman, gifted right halfback. He was the only Statesman elected by sports writers to the All-New England team and was reported as "strong and steady, always ready to help the other fellow." Captain Simons played the other outside halfback position; his work, both offensively and defensively, will be hard to equal next season. The defensive department will find a difficult gap to fill with the graduation of fullback Woody Jacobson.

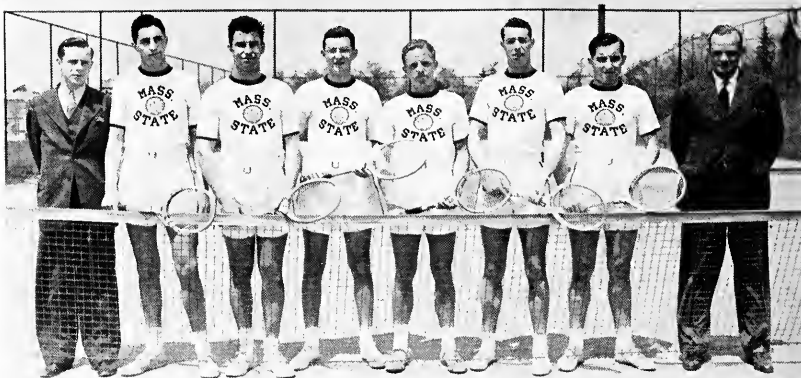

Coach Briggs began the season with unseasoned regulars and first-string subs. Despite this, the Rensselaer Engineers found it hard work to down the Statesmen 3-2. The following week with the Big Green of Dartmouth, a double overtime was not enough to settle the issue.

Though the match was hard fought on both sides and though the home team seemed to have the edge, State was unable to get to the pay window to break a 2-2 tie.

Like the Dartmouth match, the Connecticut game ended in a tie. Potter took a tricky crossover to score the first goal, while fullback Ed Pololak made the other on a penalty kick. Harvard won the next contest, but the Brigadiers deserve real commendation for holding the Crimson scoreless for the entire game. The Harvard break came on a lucky penalty kick which left the count at 1-0.

The visiting Trinity team on Dads' Day proved weak and quickly yielded three goals. However, as Coach Briggs threw in subs, the Hartford club regained two goals. In the town feud with Amherst, the Statesmen lost by a 2-1 score for the second consecutive year. Fitchburg Teachers, in the final game of the season, showed a very weak attack, going down with a 3-0 decision—even with State's many substitutions.

Replacing a discontinued hockey team, State last year entered a tennis team in varsity competition for the first time in 25 years. Despite inexperience and lack of pre-season practice because of the weather, the new club did well with three wins and two losses.

Robert Foley '40 proved to be the outstanding player and was consequently elected, after the first match, to captain the club for the remainder of the season. Bob also became first to have his name inscribed on the Paul Putnam Memorial Trophy, being picked as outstanding in athletic ability, general scholarship, and good sportsmanship. Edward Anderson '41 was picked to succeed as the captain of the club.

In their first match the team took over Clark University 5-1. The UConn meet was called because of rain, but the next week the Statesmen scored over Worcester Tech, 7-2. The two defeats of the season followed, Springfield nosing out the locals 6-3 and Trinity winning 8-1. In a return match, Connecticut succumbed 6-3, while the final meet of the year with Tufts was rained out.

Janusas Peps Up Informal Hockey

State's Hockey Team shellacks the Amherst pucksters 10 to 1 in a practice game on January 7

By rolling up three wins, two ties, and two losses, State's unofficial hockey team under John Janusas made a strong bid to return to varsity status. With the Alumni Association behind the move and with continuance of ice such as enjoyed this winter, hockey players may soon again receive M's for their endeavors.

The season summed up is two wins over Amherst and one over Stockbridge, ties with Springfield and Amherst, and losses to Stockbridge and Springfield. The scores are unimportant when it is realized that all the games produced interesting hockey and showed skill and spirit.

The first line of Captain Babe Gaumont, Ace Thayer, and Rollic Collela furnished the scoring punch for the team. A very capable defense was found in Herb Gross, and Lloyd Fitzpatrick. The goal was tightly defended by Mif Atwood with Phil Young as an able reserve. Baker, White, Leland, Burr, and Norton well filled the skates of the first squad when they got a chance. It is a notable fact that not one of the above mentioned men is a senior and that many are freshmen. Hockey must certainly be on the upgrade at State!

W.A.A. Sports Keep Coeds on Toes

From modern dancing to basketball and swimming, the feminine campus population "goes to town" in sports, proving that the average coed type is The Outdoor Girl.

Besides required physical education courses, coeds have had a full program of sports.

The interhouse competition has eliminated to a great extent the "cut-throat rivalry" of the five State sororities. Only girls who live in a house may represent it—with the exception of off-campus students who may permanently affiliate themselves with any house. The houses, sororities and women's dormitories, compete in basketball, hockey, swimming, skiing, and bowling.

The managers of each sport—Mary Mann in basketball, Betty Webster in hockey, Mary Jean Carpenter in swimming, Dorothy Dunklee in skiing, and Priscilla Archibald in bowling—arrange the time for games and help conduct tournaments. Sigma Beta Chi won in basketball; Draper Hall, in hockey; Draper Hall, also in swimming. Inter-class as well as interhouse competition was held in both swimming and basketball. This year coeds are also entering the National Telegraphic Swimming Meet.

Interest in skiing has been fostered by ski movies and lessons to any coed who wanted to learn that fine art. A women's ski meet, arranged for Carnival week-end, was cancelled because of the unfortunately poor weather.

In addition to interhouse competition, individual tournaments and activities were conducted in tennis, badminton, archery, and riding. The managers are, respectively: Norma Handforth, Priscilla Badger, Mary Berry, and Kay Tully. Besides tournament participation, the "coeds on horseback" ride weekly and take part in a spring horse show.

As this year's innovation in the physical education program, modern dancing classes under the direction of Frances Lappen put on a program in March. Coeds also had an exhibit at the Recreation Conference in March and presented an afternoon entertainment on Mothers' Day.

Eleven Fraternities in Sports Rivalry

It is a sure sign of spring on campus when the boys roll out of battered frat doors of an eveing to compete with rival houses in softball. There are more shouts and cheers than have ever been given at a varsity game, and the victory march back to the house re-echoes in the hills surrounding Amherst.

The most signal reward for the best-rated fraternity on campus besides its own satisfaction of achievement is the first place Interfraternity Cup, won by Kappa Sigma for the 1939-40 competition. The purpose of the interfraternity sports is to promote healthy competition between men who otherwise would have no opportunity to engage in athletics. Lettermen are ineligible to participate in these sports.

Competition for the cups involve ratings in interfraternity academics and scholarship as well as sports. True fraternal sportsmanship is shown in such sports as soccer, touch football, track, volleyball, basketball, and softball. Kappa Sigma's touch football sextet romped to a championship of the league when it downed Alpha Epsilon Pi to a 38-20 victory. Sigma Pi Epsilon booted its way to a flying victory over stiff competition when it took the soccer pennant. First place in athletics was a dead heat between Theta Chi and Alpha Epsilon Pi during competition so far this year. Sid Kauffman of the Physical Education Department handles these Greek sports.

Carnival week-end dawned cloudy and warm, but the interfraternity skating events were run off regardless of the weatherman's carelessness. The skating races (see picture below) resulted in a first for Phi Sig, with A.G.R. and Theta Chi panting to a tied second. A.G.R.'s placing in the sporting events and a first in snow sculpture earned the proud house the Carnival Cup and points toward the Interfraternity Cup. The first-place cup is presented to the best all-around fraternity on campus for the competition period. A.E.P., Theta Chi, and Lambda Chi Alpha hold second, third and fourth places for the period just past. Three cups and an honorable mention are awarded at a spring convocation.

Phi Sigma Kappa wins first in the Winter Carnival fraternity competition, with A.G.R. and T.C. second, and S.A.E. third

HE green-as-grass freshman, the cocky sophomore, and the metamorphosed junior—these three lower classes are grouped together in the following Directory. Listed under their names are their bare statistics, but unknown (except to themselves) are their struggles in gearing their personalities to the college world. Freshmen drop their mothers' apron strings, groan under the stiff requirements of the college professor, and study their Zoology and Chemistry night after night. Sophomores learn new cuss-words for the "Pat's" literature course and frolic on horseback in the R.O.T.C. cavalry class. Blasé juniors awaken only for quizzes, hour exams, "Dean's Saturday," or semester finals—while approximately thirty of the best are chosen as military majors. These are the men and women of tomorrow.

THE "SHOOTING" of next year's seniors, the class of '42, will be the most important work of the new INDEX staff. Since characteristic informals will be taken of every senior, Margaret Marsh and her photographers must have the co-operation which the class of '41 did not give.

Members of the class of '42 should see Miss Marsh before November 1st. Any who do not see her this spring or before the November deadline "will be 'shot' in any position, flattering or otherwise." For those, censorship will be only by the INDEX Board so that INDEX photographers will be spared the cutting comments of uncooperative students.

"The earlier you look me up the better chance you have of getting a good likeness yourself—yourself, not Myrna Loy or Clark Gable."—MARGARET MARSH
